

← unusual stuff

```
\documentclass{article}
\begin{document}
\title{A Latex Document Outline}
\author{Peter J Smith}
\maketitle
```

← appearance
← refinements on appearance
} title

```
\begin{abstract}
\textbf{If you need an abstract, then it goes here. While you are reading this document, it for the writing style, grammar, consistency, suitability, etc. }
\end{abstract}
```

```
\section{Introduction}
In the introduction, the main material is usually text, references and lists.
```

```
\section{Analysis}
The section on analysis is split into two sub-sections.
```

```
\subsection{Analysis: Part 1}
Here is the first part.
```

```
\subsection{Analysis: Part 2}
Here is the second part.
```

```
\section{Numerical Results}
Here, you often discuss the mathematics and any results using tables, graphics, etc.
```

```
\section{Conclusions}
Conclusions are often required.
```

```
\end{document}
```

BODY